

SCRAPBOOKING

one month at a time

with Tami Taylor

December

A few facts (from Wikipedia.org):

- December is the last month of the year. What are your final reflections of 2011?
- December has the longest daylight hours in the southern hemisphere and the shortest daylight hours in the northern hemisphere. What do these extremes mean to you? Do you southern hemisphere gals take advantage of the extra sun? Do you northern gals catch up on sleep or find fun indoor activities?

Did you know?

December's birthstone is the blue turquoise. The turquoise has a history that dates far back and was thought to change color with the wearer's health and protect him or her from untoward forces. Yet the hardness of turquoise is only slightly above that of glass. I know a few people who I thought couldn't handle a situation, yet rise to the occasion and prove their might. Do you? Have you scrapped how remarkable this person is?

By the Numbers:

Layouts finished: _____

Snowy Days: _____

Hot Chocolates Slurped: _____

Cards sent: _____

Holiday Bonuses: _____

Facebook Updates: _____

Soups Stewed: _____

Cookies Gobbled: _____

Nights Cuddled: _____

DECEMBER favorites

moment: _____

_____

activity: _____

_____

event: _____

_____

thing: _____

_____

_____