

SCRAPBOOKING

one month at a time

with Tami Taylor

September

A few facts (from Wikipedia.org):

- September's name was derived from the Latin word "septem" which means seven. Can you think of seven things you'll miss about this past summer?
- September is also the month in which the World Trade Center and Pentagon attacks occurred. With this being the 10th anniversary of these attacks I think it would be a good time to document where you were, how you found out and the way in which that day impacted your life.

Did you know?

September's birthstone is the Sapphire. It's interesting over the course of the year to learn all about these gems. Some have fancy names that are hard to spell and more than not they come in so many colors I can't imagine how one would know which gem is which. So what makes the sapphire unique? For me it's that one type of sapphire is the Color Change Sapphire (yup that's what it's called) and it changes colors in different lights and another type is called a Star Sapphire because it displays a star like design. I like simplicity. I like calling things how you see them... sounds like a good theme for a layout.

By the Numbers:

Layouts finished: _____

Indian Summers: _____

Football Games: _____

Christmas displays seen: _____

Days Volunteered at School: _____

TV Premiers Watched: _____

SEPTEMBER favorites

moment: _____

activity: _____

event: _____

thing: _____

